Dear Dorothy:-

Well honey this is the 7th and another day discounted. But tell me in your next letter the exact date that you are to come home on so that we may make reservation for your train.

Now for your clothes I had been thinking I would send you one of those cotton skirts I bought you last summer and you could wash your pleas- and blouse and wear that on the train home. If it is short you could let the hem down. I would rather you waited for shoes till you get home
